MARINES RESPOND PERFECTLY AS THEY TRAIN FOR FIGHTING

Eagerly Respond With Precision As Coach Takes Them Through Paces

ABOARD A MAN-O-WAR

Perfect Technique for Dealing Out Sudden and Wholesale Death

By Ralph B. Jordan
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

ABOARD A MAN-O-WAR WITH THE U. S. PACIFIC FLEET, Jan. 26—As this heavy cruiser scoured the Pacific today for Japanese, a group of young men on a forward deck were exercising. Had the Japs been able to look on, they probably would have been better able to understand what makes an American such an enthusiastic fighter.

The group numbered about the same as a football squad at a small college. They closely resembled a grid team in physique, condition and spirit. They were being coached by a stalwart young man from Cornell. He is a Marine officer now.

Through a megaphone he barked signals and encouragement — "That's the stuff! Give it to 'em!"

He even whaled one husky across the shoulders in praise. And his squad responded perfectly. They gave it to 'em, with vim and vigor and lots of chatter.

The sharp young officer and his squad of Marines, instead of practicing touchdown schemes, were perfecting their technique for dealing out sudden wholesale death.

They were working out on some guns of a respectable size and caliber. They shifted as they counted off, like a backfield getting in position for a play, and leaped to their assignments.

Gets His Commission Of Second Lieutenant

FORT BENNING, Ga., Jan. 26—Sergeant Joseph W. Snyder, of Bristol, Pa., received his commission as second lieutenant of infantry in the Army of the United States today after successfully completing an intense three-month Officer Candidate School course at the famous Infantry School here.

The new officer was one of the carefully selected men who were picked from the ranks as likely officers. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Snyder, 237 Monroe street, Bristol, Pa.

Men of all grades from private to master sergeant were represented in today's graduating class. With their new commissions they also received orders for immediate active duty.

The routine of The Officer Candidate School is rigorous. After passing test upon test to finally enter the three-month training period, the students have a full schedule.

It runs from actual firing of all infantry weapons and leadership of battle units in field maneuvers, to plenty of heavy studying over books.

The students are taught every phase of infantry battle, organization and leadership. Ability to lead is considered one of the most important qualifications of an officer.

They are constantly being subjected to stiff graded tests. They have little time to themselves during the three months. They are up early and start on their day's work by double timing to the scene of their first lesson. And they move at the same pace throughout the entire day. As a result they not only get a thorough knowledge of their future jobs but also conclude the course in fine physical condition.

LATEST WAR BULLETINS

48-Hour Attack Made On "Jap" Convoy

Washington—Seven American flying fortresses participated in the 48-hour attack on a Japanese convoy in the Macassar Straits, sinking one enemy transport and setting fire to another, the War Department announced today.

Text of the Department's communique follows:
"Philippine Theatre—Fighting on Bataan Peninsula was confined to relatively unimportant skirmishes on the west coast and in the vicinity of Subic Bay.

"Delayed reports advise that the City of Cebu—Philippines—suffered an intensive air raid on January 21st. Eighteen enemy bombers participated in the attack. One small inter-island boat was sunk in Cebu Harbor. No other serious damage was inflicted."

Demand Court-Martial for Kimmel and Short

Washington—The report of the Pearl Harbor board today resulted in demands for the court-martial of Admiral Husband E. Kimmel and Lieut. Gen. Short, and for an additional inquiry to determine how much blame the War and Navy Departments should share.

It also renewed agitation for the establishment of a unified command to prevent a recurrence of the December 7th holocaust which plunged the nation into war.

Although the report of the board headed by Supreme Court Justice Owen Roberts fixed the responsibility for the Pearl Harbor disaster solely on the two top commanders in the Hawaiian area, Kimmel and Short, some Senators are taking the position that it did not go far enough.

Military experts expressed conviction that the board's emphasis on the failure of Kimmel and Short to co-operate again opens the entire question of a closer co-ordination of naval and military effort under a compact, single command.

Stunning Blows Dealt Japanese Invasion Fleet

Batavia—American "flying fortress" bombers and a Dutch submarine have dealt stunning new blows to the battered Japanese invasion fleet in the Strait of Macassar, an official war communique announced today.

Two Japanese cruisers, a destroyer and a large transport vessel were declared to have been sunk or damaged in these newest U. S. and Dutch counter-blows in defense of the Netherlands East Indies.

The American planes yesterday sank a large transport ship and scored a direct hit on a cruiser in an attack on a Japanese convoy in Macassar Strait, according to a communique issued from Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell's headquarters.

The N. E. I. high command stated a Dutch submarine, adding to recent Netherlands naval successes, sank a Jap destroyer and scored a torpedo hit on an enemy cruiser in a night attack in Macassar Strait.

Previously, it had been admitted that despite furious American and Dutch naval attacks on the Japanese transports in the Macassar Strait, the Japs effected additional landings at Balikpapan on the East Coast of Borneo and at Kendari on Celebes Island.

Disclose Sinking of U. S. Tanker

Washington—The Navy today disclosed that the American tanker S. S. Venore was torpedoed "off the Atlantic Coast January 24," by an enemy submarine.

In its announcement, the Navy said: "The S. S. Venore, 8,016-ton oil carrier owned by the Ore Steamship Company of New York, was torpedoed and sunk off the Atlantic Coast on January 24. Members of the ship's company who were rescued have been landed at Norfolk, Va."

The vessel apparently was struck by four torpedoes within two minutes.

Soviets Approach Leningrad-Vitebsk-Kiev Railway

Moscow—Advancing Soviet forces on the North Central front approached the strategic Leningrad-Vitebsk-Kiev Railway today after recapturing Neidovo, 50 miles west of the Nazi garrison at Rzhew.

Recapture of Neidovo on the Moscow-Riga Railway brought the Russians' wedge within 50 miles of Velikiye Luki.

Severance of the Leningrad-Kiev rail line by the Russians would cut off the northern Nazi armies from contact with the Nazi legions on the central and southern front.

Learn About General Workings of The Modern Motor Car

INTENSELY INTERESTED

Putting away the lipstick, corking the nail polish bottle, and capping the rouge jar, 16 women yesterday afternoon went in for more serious things and took their initial lesson in automotive mechanics.

The women eager to learn the "ins-and-outs" of automobiles gave up their Sunday afternoon to attend the first session of the class sponsored by the Women's Motor Mechanics Corps of the Bucks County Council of Defense. The local instruction class opened in the display room of the Percy G. Ford Motor Co., 1776 Farragut avenue, with Mr. Ford being the instructor.

The class opened with Mr. Ford outlining the general make-up of an automobile, describing the body, chassis and the motor and how it functions in a general way, without becoming too technical.

An illustrated chart did much to aid the women to identify various parts of the car. The various styles of nuts, bolts and screws were passed around among the women for examination.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

The Spirit of Congress

Washington, Jan. 24. UNLESS it experiences a quick change of heart it will never be said of this Congress that, during the war, it distinguished itself for disinterested and patriotic service. On the contrary, a strong case can be made right now for the reverse. Certainly, the record of the last six months is nothing of which to be proud.

TO be sure, Congress has voted almost unanimously the uncounted billions asked by the President for the prosecution of the war. It wildly applauded the Roosevelt and Churchill speeches. It has given the President all the personal power he asked. And much fervent oratory has come from Senators and Representatives personally stressing the necessity of sacrifices upon the part of the people. But, have they themselves set an example in this business of sacrifice? Have they given any evidence of willingness to relinquish any personal perquisites in the national interest?

—O—

Let the record answer the questions. On December 12, the Senate by a vote of 53 to 39 inserted in an appropriation bill provision giving each Senator an additional $4500 a year clerk. This was done despite pleas of various Senators that it was a shameful and inexcusable thing to do at this time and under these circumstances. The House, seemingly more self-respecting on this proposal, heeded the protest and refused to concur, thus killing this sneaky little scheme.

—O—

ON January 19, the Senate, by a vote of 42 to 24, passed a bill already passed by the House, extending

The budget is prepared, according to law, in four departments or funds, showing in detail the estimated receipts and expenditures of each department. Totals of each department are:

	Est. Rec.	Est. Exp.

Electric Fund	162,667.65	114,400.00

General Fund	73,035.96	69,352.00
Total	$288,963.14	$221,962.00

By a 9 to 3 vote, a motion that the one-way traffic regulation on Broad streets be discontinued was defeated by Borough Council at an adjourned meeting.

Parking restrictions, time limits, etc., were discussed, but no definite action was taken.

Mr. Harner suggested "Slow-School Zone" signs be painted on the street surfaces of Broad, Juniper, and Park avenue. This was referred to the police committee.

Red Cross Expects New Supply of Wool Shortly

At Red Cross headquarters a consignment of wool was received for the making of sleeveless sweaters for the Army of the United States of America. This wool was so much in demand that it was quickly taken by devoted individuals interested in the welfare of the boys, it is announced.

Another consignment will be received in a few days; then, more needles will be clicking.

A local Red Cross official stated: "It is very important that we all understand thoroughly that the American Red Cross never sells wool—that wool is given to people desiring to knit for the organization. Rumors have been circulated in the town concerning the buying of wool from Red Cross. This is absolutely false, and should be contradicted immediately. Should questions of this sort arise, kindly telephone 2476 or 3003 and those conversant with the methods of Red Cross business affairs will discuss details with the questioner."

DOROTHY CRAWFORD TO APPEAR HERE FEBRUARY 4

Fine Portrayals Are Anticipated In Her Original Character Sketches

CO-OPERATIVE CONCERT

Realizing that perfection in drama is reached through an even blend of intellect and emotion, Dorothy Crawford, who appears here on February 4th, at 8:30 p. m., at the Bristol high school auditorium, for the Bristol Co-operative Concert Association, in a program of her original character sketches, brings both to her portrayals.

A keen observer of life, she knows that every tragedy has its own peculiarly humorous bits and that the finest comedy contains much pathos. This makes for a fascinating union of emotional qualities in the playing of a character. Consequently she plays her tragic-drama a bit lightly and her comedy quite seriously. The old singer who is faced with the loss of her beloved piano tries in her exigency to speak the language of the jazz-mad child of today. The humor of her attempt breaks through the tragedy of her life for a moment. On the other hand, a woman whose angling to recapture a former suitor are entirely humorous, allows one to catch sight of a pathetic frustration.

Perhaps the outstanding quality of

Police Stop Boys From Selling Placards Here

Three boys Saturday night were stopped from selling placards entitled "Remember Pearl Harbor."

The three youths were going from door to door selling the placards for 35 cents each. They previously had bought them, say police, for 15 cents each.

Where the boys made their mistake was that they allegedly represented themselves as selling the placards for the Boy Scouts.

The police were called and officers in the radio car began a tour of the borough to checkup on the youngsters.

One Man's Opinion

By Walter Kiernan
I. N. S. Staff Writer

The Department of Agriculture is working up a new system of standard sizes for women's wear. Too many grandmothers have been trampled in the junior miss aisles.

A woman is as old as she hopes she doesn't look and add 20.

Present sizes in dresses are girls, junior miss, miss and isn't she a mess?

A 45-year-old girl is entitled to go at a size 12 and will impugn the manufacturer's tape measure if it rammed into a 16.

A gusset is something like a gore.

A gore resembles a gusset in free translation.

The Department of Agriculture took over the size job because the Bureau of Standards discovered that there is no such thing as a standard inch.

That is why so many people take a yard. They regard an inch as an inferior product without proper background.

Thought for the day: Ah, woman—why don't you give yourself up?

The troop held its first meeting in borough hall on Thursday. Regular meetings will be held there on each Thursday evening at seven o'clock; and the Cub Packs monthly meeting will be held on the third Friday evening at same hour.

The meeting on February 10th will be held at home of Ned Moyer; and the March meeting at the home of Frank Binder.

Plans for a father and son program for the community will be taken up at next meeting; and the event announced for some time soon after Easter.

MACARTHUR'S MEN FIGHT ON

Piecing together official War Department bulletins covering General MacArthur's campaign in the Philippines, making a fair allowance for propaganda in both American and Japanese reports, submitting the result to examination in the light of what is known about the country, the situation and the probable strategy, it appears that this force may be engaged in one of the great adventures of American military history.

Arguably General MacArthur is acting under instructions to drive the hardest possible bargain with the enemy. That calls for drawing the superior advancing Japanese forces into exposed positions, inflicting heavy casualties and destroying material and supplies, and then falling back to another position with the same advantages.

The Japanese air force seems to have given up hope of contributing much from the air to a decisive victory. Much of it seems to have been withdrawn, presumably because it could not find targets in the jungle which screens the American maneuvers. Reports that the Americans destroyed a dozen or more Japanese field batteries in an artillery duel indicate reliance on shells instead of bombs. Japanese bombing of Corregidor has failed to dishearten its stout defenders.

For two months MacArthur's men have been outmaneuvering and outfighting a greatly superior force. The morale advantage, which is always with the advancing army favors the enemy. The Americans are forced to conserve supplies and sacrifice heavily to gain mobility. But they have the skill, hardihood and spirit to hold out. They are keeping a strong Japanese force from the Singapore campaign. In fact, if Singapore is held, MacArthur's tough and tireless army may deserve much of the credit.

UNDER THE HAMMER

It seems ironically appropriate that at a moment when the British Empire is embattled on a dozen far-flung fronts, the works of the man who sang of that empire's glory should go under the hammer. In New York City the Ballard collection of first editions, manuscripts and autograph letters of Rudyard Kipling are being auctioned off to the highest bidders.

Among the items are the only known copy of the first English edition of "Kim," the only known copy of the suppressed first edition of "The City of Dreadful Night," one of three known copies of the first English edition of "Letters of Marque" and a rough draft in Kipling's handwriting of "The Brushwood Boy." These are enough to make any collector's mouth water.

Although Kipling did more than anyone else to make England conscious of its far-flung empire—the map which is half unfurled—he was not blind to the faults in its administration or to the sacrifices demanded of Tommy Atkins in the getting and holding of this great territory.

But even during the First World War his poetic strains were muted, and one wonders what his contribution to the cause would be today. So far no great English poet has arisen to chant the song of embattled democracy and Britain's relation to it.

Mussolini says he will "shatter" the United States. After his triumphant armies have "shattered" Russia, no doubt.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol, Mar. 24, 1880. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

William G. Allen, one of our best known citizens, died on Thursday of last week. He was interested in various enterprises of public interest, where his integrity and business sagacity were highly appreciated.

The Bristol Library is indebted to Hon. William Godshalk, member of Congress from this district, for a copy of the narrative of Capt. C. F. Hall's Second Arctic Expedition.

The Bristol Weekly Times is now under the management of Harry Chambers, who purchased the interest of the late editor for $45. With this fortune the departed editor retired to his native land, New Jersey, as mysteriously as he came.

Council held a special meeting on Monday evening to take action upon the borough statement. The auditing committee having examined the statement and found it correct it was accepted by council.

The last meeting of the Bristol Institute for the season occurred on Tuesday evening. There was a large attendance, and the exercises, which were varied and of much interest, were listened to with appreciation. The nominating committee appointed to select Arthur Collins has in his possession an old English coin bearing the date of 1700, which was dug up in the cellar of William Blackwood's property on Mill street.

The Delaware and Raritan canal is open for navigation and the steam packets from Philadelphia and Baltimore have begun their trips to and from New York.

William H. Stout has been appointed postmaster at Southampton.

Shad are not booming.

In the fullness of years and after a useful and prosperous career, William Hawk, one of our most estimable citizens, died suddenly but not unexpectedly on Tuesday night. For a long period he was conspicuous in borough affairs, but of late has lived a retired life in the enjoyment of merited rest after the arduous labors of earlier years.

This being what is termed in the Catholic Church, Holy Week, special services in keeping with the solemn season began at St. Mark's this morning with Holy Thursday services.

The centennial celebration of Bristol Lodge of A. Y. Masons next Monday will be an occasion of unusual interest. The exercises at the Baptist Church in the afternoon will doubtless attract a large attendance. The pews on the side aisles will be occupied by members of the lodge, and the center pews will be open for the public. The orchestra and choral society will occupy the gallery.

More snow has fallen in March than during the winter.

The Bristol post office has been made an office for issuing French money orders.

ing the benefits of the Federal Civil Service Retirement System to all members of Congress. It is, of course, unprecedented. Persons elected to Federal office have never been regarded as entitled to retirement benefits. Heretofore, they have applied solely to appointed job holders and the primary purpose was to provide some sort of pension for the small Federal clerks whose pay is poor and who reach the age of 70 after long service.

FOR members of Congress now to legislate themselves into the retirement system is a piece of unadulterated selfishness. It was done over strong protests from Senator Byrd of Virginia, Senator Norris of Nebraska and others who pointed out that this, in effect, was an act by the Senate to pension Senators; that it would be bad at any time, but with the nation at war and the whole Federal credit system under terrific strain, it is an indefensible action.

NEVERTHELESS it was taken. The twenty-four protesting Senators were overridden by the majority and unless the President vetoes the bill, which is not likely, members of Congress are "in." Of course, it is small stuff, but it leaves a very bad taste in the mouth, particularly when it is noted that in the majority that voted for the additional clerk as well as for the pension proposal, were the Senators who over the radio and on the Senate floor are most passionately patriotic, belligerent and insistent upon the necessity of sacrifice.

TO these two purely selfish acts must be coupled the larger facts that in the face of unmistakable inflation perils Congress has fiddled and fooled with the vital price-control law for six months; that it has weakly and wickedly yielded to pressure from the farm lobby; that it utterly lacked the force to enact anti-strike legislation; that it cravenly dodged the wage-regulation issue; that the House recently passed, under lobby pressure, two fantastically extravagant veteran pension proposals and a Senate committee is now considering them.

WHEN all this is added up it makes a pretty creditable chapter in our legislative history. The spirit which the President and others are trying to inculcate in the American people is not being exhibited in the American Congress. Neither the breast-beating speeches about the irresistible might of the United States, nor the enthusiastic demand that every individual contribute his all to the winning of the war, disguises the fact that Congress is not doing its job well. It is exhibiting neither bigness nor intelligence. It votes loudly and enthusiastically for the war billions and then gives an exhibition of petty politics and personal smallness wholly incompatible with its patriotic professions.

IT is time for Congress to examine itself and change its attitude. It is time for the people to let Congress know that super-heated oratory and huge appropriations do not excuse the small, selfish and supine business which have marked this session. In or out of Congress, no one will contend that the record is a good one. The thing that seems needed to make it utterly bad is the scuttling of the Byrd committee report and the side-tracking of the reductions in normal governmental expenditures urged also by the President and the Secretary of the Treasury and vitally necessary to slumber, filled with the most confused dreams of airplanes, combats, Wendy, Rusty and Mac.

Lord Harrowsdale spoke to his wife from behind the morning paper. "Looks as though we may have to give up our trips to London and Scotland this year after all, dear. The Jerries are dumping their bombs indiscriminately over Kent when they are turned back from their objectives. That'll have my air raid wardens on the jump, and I should be around to keep their spirits up."

"I think you are quite right," her Ladyship answered. "And we decided at the hospital board meeting to start work on another wing immediately. We're fearfully overcrowded, you know. They're send-woman's insight, who was right. As the train rumbled along towards London, through which she must pass to reach Watford, Wendy thought of nothing and no one except David Hutchinson. She admitted frankly to herself that it was love-at-first-sight as sure as it existed. The young American had hit the mark in her heart, leaving a pleasant wound, and she was enjoying its pleasant, throbbing sensation. . . . Wendy did not think of him by his family name, but as David. It was a nice name and she liked it. In fact she liked everything about him: his face, his figure, his eyes, the tousled hair, simplicity of nature, gay laugh, embarrassment, and above all his courage. This was the kind of man she had always dreamed of marrying.

SYNOPSIS

Forced down on a golf course in Kent, England, David "Hutch" Hutchinson, American flyer with the "Hornets" squadron of the R.A.F., meets lovely Wendy Bruce. The latter, an ambulance driver on leave, is the daughter of Lord and Lady Harrowsdale, whose estate, "The Downs," is nearby. Just as David finishes repairing an oil leak, he sees three Messerschmitts chasing a single Spitfire. He joins the battle and downs one of the enemy planes; the other disappears in the clouds. When news comes to "The Downs" that Philip, Wendy's brother, is to take the place of a "Hornet" who crashed nearby, the girl's heart sinks for fear it was David. She is overcome with emotion when Philip telephones that David is safe. In the meantime, Hutch has returned to his base, only to learn that his friend, Capt. John McCall, was the flyer who had "bought it" (an R.A.F. term for dying in combat). Two of Hutch's buddies, Arthur Stafford and Rusty Ransome, do their best to cheer him up. Word comes that a fleet of bombers was sighted over Hastings. Hutch is made squadron leader in Mac's place. Just as the "Hornets" are about to go to the attack, Philip joins them. In flight, Hutch radios a welcome. After a brief encounter, an anti-aircraft crew reports that three bombers fell in the vicinity, so the Commanding Officer credits the Hornets. Hutch goes to the hospital with a shoulder wound, disappointed that he will be grounded for a few weeks.

CHAPTER NINE

Broth and toast were served to Hutch by the same nurse who had brought the anti-tetanus and, after he had finished it, she said good night and put out the light.

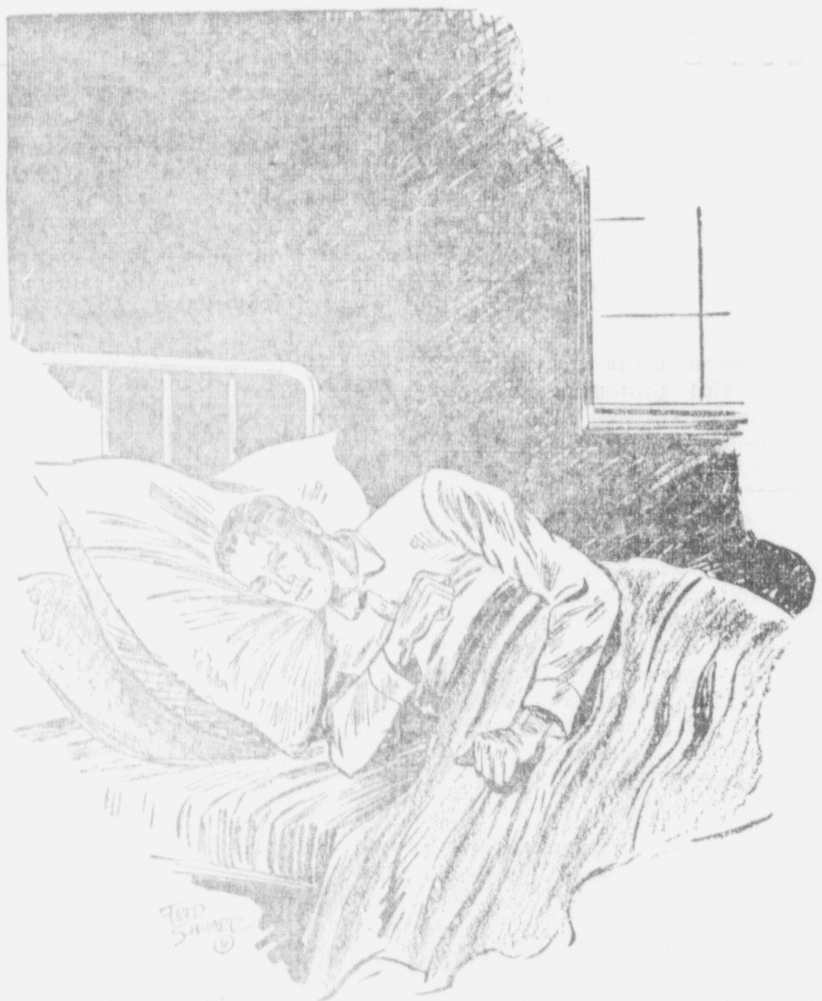

How long he lay there in the dark, tossing restlessly and thinking, he could not say. It must have been hours before sleep came, and during that time a general summing-up of the last few days passed through his mind, a resume that was not always on the pleasant side. . . . There were the pilots he had shot down, seen crash to their deaths to be burned and mangled beyond recognition. Of course, this had been done in fair combat. It was one or the other, and as long as he could, he preferred to be the victor. But the poor devils must have families back home in the Fatherland who loved them and would mourn for them, feel their loss dreadfully.

Well, he had a family too, in far off Virginia. He must think of them, of his mother and father, of Betty and Kate, his sisters. For their sakes he had to defend himself. . . . Poor old Mac! He had been so alive, so full of life only that morning, Hutch could see him plainly, running full speed across the field when the signal had come, yelling to the other pilots, "A scramble! Hurry up, a scramble!" He had always been the most enthusiastic of all for a fight, the first to arrive at his plane, the last to return.

Then Hutch heard his friend's eager voice coming over the air through the R.T. receivers, crying, "Tallyho! There they are. Tallyho! Tallyho!" when he sighted the enemy. Now Mac had followed so many others.

Among the more pleasant memories that sifted through his feverish brain were of the girl he had met that morning on the golf links, Wendy Bruce, and her brother, Philip. The latter had flown well, but Hutch had hardly even met him. Seemed O.K. Steady chap, and very English. But the girl. That was something to think about. . . . Now he couldn't put through his plan to visit the Bruces for ever so long. First he would have to return to the squadron and make friends with the brother. Then he would have to hint for an invitation to his home, and—why it might take months. . . .

Her eyes seemed to be looking straight at him, half smiling, half serious. "You're beautiful," he said, and fell off into a dozed

During that sleepless time a general summing-up of the last few days passed through his mind.

ing us convalescent cases now. I suppose that is because we're far enough off the line which the raiders take to London."

"I suppose so. But one never can tell which direction they will take."

For a time the couple sat in silence; Lady Harrowsdale busy with her knitting for the soldiers, her husband deep in the day's news.

Wendy had left on the early train, her twenty-four hour leave up, to return to Watford where her ambulance corps was stationed. Oddly enough, this town is only a few miles from St. Albans, but she did not know that the Hornets were there.

A log fire crackled gaily in the sitting room of The Downs, and the only other sound in the comfortable room was the clicking of the mistress' needles as she sock upon which she was working grew with surprising rapidity. Finally she broke the silence. "Did you notice any change in Wendy?"

Lord Harrowsdale folded his paper and dropped it to the floor before answering. "No. That is, nothing much. Seemed a bit less talkative, more on the silent side, and a little less usual. Must be the war, and the sights she is seeing hauling wounded out of London. Rough job for a girl."

"She's in love."

The thought that 1940 was leap year came to Wendy and she smiled. Should she put the question? Why not? It was a crazy, topsy-turvy world anyway. When would she see him again? She determined to arrange that through Phil. What luck that her brother had been assigned to the same squadron! Where The Hornets were stationed she did not know. Flying fields were the most secreted places in England. However, a letter would reach him. Something might be arranged at The Downs, a week-end, or something. It would have to be handled with tact so that no one would suspect, especially David. She wondered how her mother and father would like the idea. They had hinted several times that they would like her to marry the son of a neighbor, young Lord Leslie Gordon, but she knew that she could never be in love with the chap. He was a good pal, and all that, yet not what she wished for a husband, especially now that she knew David. Of course Phil would simply adore him. She was aware of her brother's weakness for heroes.

Her father and mother couldn't help liking the American if they knew him, only there was that foolish, old-fashioned business of titles. They had set their hearts on having a son-in-law who would sit in the House of Lords, and all that sort of rot. Wendy couldn't help looking on it as rot at a time like the present. The only things that were worth while now were liberty and freedom. They must be conserved at any cost, and certainly David was doing more than his part to defend them.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By the Rev. James R. Galley)

Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church

O God, Whose power strengthenest all those who call upon Thee, help us to be patient and sympathetic with all who need our help. If we have wronged any one, give us the grace of repentance and confession. If any have injured us, enable us to forgive and forget. Let us behold the truth that an extra step taken to bring joy into the life of another, brings satisfaction unsurpassable into our own lives. May we thus serve Thee and ourselves, while serving others. Through Jesus Christ Thy Son. Amen.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

A drama of great emotional power and intensity was unveiled last night at the Grand Theatre, when "The Little Foxes" opened to an enthusiastic local audience. This fine motion picture, faithfully transcribed to the screen from the Broadway success is the story of one woman's ruthless ambition and the effect it had on those around her.

In the leading role of Regina Giddens, the beautiful and heartless wife of a Southern banker, Bette Davis gives one of the best performances in her career, bringing to her portrayal of the Dixie vixen once more the assurance and conviction that has made her the first lady of the screen. In "The Little Foxes" she is ably supported by Herbert Marshall, who plays her husband; Charles Dingle, Carl Benton Reid, Patricia Collinge, Richard Carlson, and Teresa Wright, a newcomer to the films.

BRISTOL THEATRE

Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, unlike many other teams of comics, are not jealous of each other, and try to present the laughs in a picture effectively without regard to the part played by either in obtaining the laugh. They are appearing in "Great Guns," at the Bristol Theatre.

Joan Blondell appears in "Three Girls About Town," in which she is starred with Blinnie Barnes and Janet Blair at the Bristol Theatre with Robert Benchley and John Howard.

RITZ THEATRE

romance but is also required to let loose with a "Tarzan" yell. The noises he had to make were described in the script as: "He lets loose with some dreadful howls. . . . The kind of noise one would expect to hear from a starving wolf." Said Eddy: "Studying voice was a cinch compared to this!" The picture is now at the Ritz Theatre.

Wedded at Ceremony
In St. Ann's Church

With the bride costumed in blush rose satin, and her attendants in gold-tone taffeta, the D'Eustachio-Liberator marriage ceremony in St. Ann's R. C. Church, yesterday afternoon at two o'clock, was a most attractive affair.

The bride, Miss Italia Molly Liberator, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Liberator, 13 Lincoln avenue, and the groom, Mr. Mark D'Eustachio, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emilio only goes Russian in the new musical D'Eustachio, Beverly, N. J.

The Rev. Fr. Peter Pinci, rector of St. Ann's Church, performed the ceremony. Miss Frances Tamburella, organist, played the bridal marches, and provided accompaniment for the vocalist, Miss Yolanda DePelle, Lincoln avenue, who sang "The Rosary."

Mrs. Thomas L. Jasco, Trenton, N. J., was matron of honor; and the trio of bridesmaids was inclusive of: the Misses Mary Valponi, Lincoln avenue; Josephine DiLorenzo, Wood street; and Helen DiTanna, New Brook street. The best men were Messrs. Andrew Cordisco, Lincoln avenue; Anthony Peppino, Burlington, N. J.

The beautiful blush rose gown of the bride was fashioned of slipper satin. The chiffon yoke fitted closely in a round neckline; and about the shoulders was a wide ruffle of lace. The gown buttoned down the back of the long torso style bodice, and long sleeves ended in points over the hands. The voluminous train was very long. With this was worn a heart-shaped head-dress of blush rose slipper satin, with trim of lace and pearls, the long veil being of net. Slippers were of white satin, and she carried an arm bouquet of calla lilies and orchids.

The matron of honor and the bridesmaids were costumed in gold-toned taffeta, the form-fitting bodices being gathered at the front. Necklines were cut in a V, and the tight sleeves were three-quarter length. The full, floor-length skirts were set off by horizontal cording. Slippers matched the gowns; and head-pieces of gold were patterned of plumes and taffeta. Each maid carried a colonial bouquet of yellow tea roses.

During the evening relatives and friends gathered in Mutual Aid Hall for a reception. Mr. D'Eustachio and bride have gone to Washington, D. C., for a week's sojourn. The travelling costume of the bride consisted of a black velvet dress, black cloth coat, silver fox neckpiece and muff, black hat with trim of silver fox and red feathers; and a corsage of orchids. The residence of the newlyweds will be at 533 Broad street, Beverly, N. J.

“JOBBOY” DUGAN TO BATTLE FOR RIGHT TO ENTER SEMI-FINALS

Bristol Amateur Fighter Will Have To Eliminate His Opponent AT CAMBRIA A. C. Dugan Is Fighting In the 175-Pound Class Tonight

A Bristol amateur fighter, “Jobbo” Dugan, will have the opportunity of moving into the semi-finals of the Golden Gloves tournament if he is successful in disposing of his opponent at the Cambria A. C. tonight.

“Jobbo” is fighting in the 175-pound class, and remaining in this class with him are: Louis Walker, Eastside Club; Joe VanLeon, Wharton Club; and Jim Quigley, Forty-Eighth ward. Dugan entered the semi-finals by knocking out Victor Oursier, giant boxer of the Lambs Club.

Joe is well known in this section having fought for the Diamond team in the amateur season last summer and playing basketball with the Profy team in the Bristol Basketball League. The latter street also played quite a bit of football in this section.

Manager Carl Castor, of the Diamond team, has also received word that a former Diamond fighter, Carl Spinelli, will box in an amateur show sponsored by the army camp at Watertown, N. Y. It will be a five-round bout and Spinelli's opponent will be Jackie Sutton, of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Sutton is a native of England and is fighting in the 120-pound class. The bouts are scheduled for Thursday night, January 29th. Before his induction into the army, Spinelli fought in the amateurs in the St. Ann's arena.

The women appear to be intensely interested, and sat listening attentively, and made notes as the instructor progressed with the lesson.

The class was in session from one until three o'clock and will have five sessions, making ten hours of instruction.

One woman applying her natural intuition was quick to recognize the similarity between a cotter pin and a bobby pin.

Most of the instruction yesterday was devoted to the theoretical side.

BRISTOL RAMBLERS DEFEAT AUDUBON

FRANKFORD, Jan. 26—The fast-skating Bristol Ramblers scored their eleventh win of the season Saturday evening at the Frankford Rollerdom, when they defeated the Audubon Zephyrs, leader of the Penna. New Jersey Roller hockey league by the score of 6 to 3.

The Bristol club took an early lead in the first period as Bud Bowen drove the disc into the net on two occasions as he was on the end of some beautiful passing by his teammates, before the first session came to a close the lad from South Jersey tied the score as Vince Dominco twice drove the puck past goalie Johnson. The score at the end of first period: Bristol, 2; Audubon, 2.

As the second period got under way the Bristol boys sewed the game up in this period as they rifled the puck into the net for three goals from the sticks of Bud Ritter, Bud Bower and Geo. Ritter as the Audubon club were only able to score one goal from the stick of Bud Mihm.

In the third period the only score was made by the Ramblers as Bill Bell fired the disc past goalie Joe Loomer into the net as the Ramblers' defense were capable of turning back every bid that the Zephyrs were able to make trying to score.

Coach Pop Keene was well pleased with the play of his entire Ramblers' squad as they racked up their eleventh victory in twelve contests this season which make them the top ranking roller hockey club in the East.

Dorothy Crawford's work, the quality that puts her in the top bracket reserved for so very few in the genre of the monologue, is this masterly combination of intellect and emotion, of humor and pathos, of laughter and tears, that she brings to her every characterization, be it of the most lightly drawn comedy or the most profound drama.

A one-woman theatre, Dorothy Crawford's work in her original and fascinating character sketches is justifiably judged by the same high standards which have made the names of Ruth Draper and Cornelia Otis Skinner famous. Her brilliant scenes, running the gamut of emotion and experience, are projected and delineated with extraordinary technique. Tempo and mood, voice and gesture, costume and make-up paint a series of unforgettable women—Rosa, the Italian mother in "Fisherman's Wharf," awaiting the return of her husband; "Studio Evening" with its confused hostess and her honored guests, the British poetess, the soprano who can sing as well with a cold as without one, and the Grand Duchess Elena on press parade.

Dorothy Crawford was born in Portland, Ore., but San Francisco became her home at a very early age. Her parents were both writers and she was brought up in a definitely professional atmosphere.

Long before she could play the piano or read a note of music the little child "made up" songs, both words and music, and from the age of five was trained as a musician. She studied composition and orchestration for three years in New York with Rubin Goldmark and coached singing and song literature with Kurt Schindler. During this period she had several songs published by Schirmer.

Reports were made also by Mrs. Charles Metz, Mrs. William Burgess, Jr., Mrs. Eric Donelson and Miss Mary Carter. Mrs. George McAuley reported that 64 woolen sweaters and five two-piece suits have been completed. Several others have not been turned in as yet, it was stated.

Forty Attend Luncheon At Andalusia; Raise Wool Fund

The sum of $18 was realized from the covered dish luncheon held recently at the home of Mrs. Morris Ingram, Andalusia. Mrs. Ingram extended a welcome to the 40 guests assembled, then introduced the Rev. Arthur F. Gibson, who asked the blessing. The Rev. Gibson expressed the desire that the boys in military service would have a safe journey, also that the parents of the boys would have courage "until this scourge is driven from the earth."

VOLTZ ELATED OVER PROFY VICTORY; TO PLAY FRANKLIN

Profy Team Will Play Rohm & Haas in Final Tilt EXPECT FAST GAMES Several of The Players Have Found Their Shooting Eye

Elated with its victory over the Profy team, the Voltz-Texaco boys will play Franklin A. C. tonight in a Bristol Basketball League contest on the Mutual Aid floor. In the second tilt, Profy's meet Rohm and Haas.

The gasoleers appeared like champions in downing the radiomen and will attempt to make it two straight by taking over the Franks. The latter team was defeated by Rohm and Haas last week although the game was close from start to finish.

"George" Pollack seems to have found his shooting eye and in the last three tilts has been scoring quite a number of points. Coach "Gige" Dougherty is reserving a starting position for him today and the other who will start for Voltz are: Berry, Cooper, McElroy and Hutchison.

"Bill" Balon and "Freddie" Barbeta are the spearheads of the Franklin attack and this pair must be stopped to insure a Voltz-Texaco victory. Caro, DeLuca and Spencer will also start in the Franklin lineup.

The first half champion Profy team looked bad against Voltz and is out to redeem itself by taking over the chemical workers tonight. Both teams will have their strongest line-ups with Rohm and Haas making a strong bid for the second half crown.

During the past week, Ralph Cahall, brilliant forward of the Manhattan quintet, broke into the century mark by scoring nine points, giving him a total of 105 for the season, 17 points better than the second place Vince Profy who has 88 points to his credit.

Behind Profy comes that little red-headed fighting forward of the Fifth Ward team, Joe Pica. Steve Florio made the biggest climb of the week when he went on a scoring spree against St. Ann's and tallied 22 points which enabled him to jump from ninth into fourth place. Bob Monti, former Bristol High star, is still in the running for scoring honors by remaining in fifth place with his total of 74 points.

The leading scorers are as follows:

Player	Team	Pts. G.	Pts. Pct.
Cahall, Man.	14	15	17 105
V. Profy, Profy's	23	10	25 88
Pica, F. W.	37	8	13 82

Monti, Diamond	39	12	21 74
Roe, Manhattan	34	5	13 73
Barbeta, Franklin	34	4	12 62

Tentative Budget Adopted By Council, Quakertown Boro

Upon recommendation of the building committee, the pay station phone will be removed from the fire apparatus room to the booth in the borough building where it was originally specified.

The salary of Chief Burgess Oliver Jarrett was increased from $100 to $250 per year.

Paul Bealer was appointed as mechanic-janitor for the borough building. It will be his duty to keep the borough equipment and fire apparatus in condition and take care of the borough building.

The usual appropriations of $225, to Fire Company No. 1, and $175, to Fire Company No. 2, were granted.

A request by the police that they be granted an increase was followed by a recommendation that they be raised from $28.84 to $32.00 per week, for a 60-hour week, was held over until the police personnel is definitely decided upon.

Upon motion, $5,000 was transferred from the frontage and house fund to a special fund toward the purchase of fire apparatus at a future time, probably next year.

Forty Attend Luncheon At Andalusia; Raise Wool Fund

The sum of $18 was realized from the covered dish luncheon held recently at the home of Mrs. Morris Ingram, Andalusia. Mrs. Ingram extended a welcome to the 40 guests assembled, then introduced the Rev. Arthur F. Gibson, who asked the blessing. The Rev. Gibson expressed the desire that the boys in military service would have a safe journey, also that the parents of the boys would have courage "until this scourge is driven from the earth."

Mrs. Leo L. Lynn, president of the Lower Bucks County Council of Republican Women, told the guests that the money derived from the luncheon would be used for the purchase of wool, the wool to be made into various articles for the comfort of the military men. She also stated that there would be more functions of this kind.

Mrs. Lynn then introduced Mrs. Morris Dayhoff, chairman of defense work, who told the guests that wool will be available soon. She asked all mothers who have sons in the service to rise. Seven responded, they having eight boys in the service. One mother has a son in Iceland; another at Pearl Harbor.

Several contributions of money were received.

Mrs. Ingram's aides were: Mrs. Earl Ford, Mrs. Joseph Sharpe, Mrs. George Bauer, Mrs. James McCartney, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Fagan.

Music was supplied by Robert Gardiner.

Marines Respond Perfectly As They Train for Fighting

With amazing speed they whipped their powerful weapons onto targets and let 'em have it.

Watching them made it easier to understand the defense of Wake Island. The Marines love to fight, and first. They fully believe that when the Army and the Navy gaze on Heaven's scenes, they will find the streets are guarded by United States Marines.

Fact is the Marines have seen very little peace. They've been on the firing line since their corps came into being. In certain spots in Central America and the West Indies, up to a very few years ago, the Marines went about keeping the peace in a quietly resourceful but effective manner.

They thought nothing of being trapped in mountain defiles or fever-ridden jungles. They simply unsling their rifles, set up their machine guns, rationed out their water, food and ammunition and fought until there either were no more Marines or opponents.

They very seldom ran out of Marines.

The Leathernecks with this fleet can see nothing remarkable about the defense of Wake Island. It wouldn't occur to them that there is any other way than to fight to a finish.
